Supra A Feast Of Georgian
A supra is a traditional Georgian feast and a part of Georgian social culture. There are two types of supra: a festive supra, called a keipi, and a sombre supra, called a kelekhi, that is always held after burials. The traditions of supra, as an important part of Georgian social culture, were inscribed on the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Georgia list in 2017. Traditionally, and for many Georgians, up to the present, the foregrounded participants at a supra are men, with women relegated to sec

The most essential food & wine cultural experience in Georgia is the Georgian Supra (feast) hosted by an engaging Tamada (toastmaster). Georgian people are in the habit of inviting their guests to enjoy meals, where they generously serve copious amounts of Georgian wine and pile dishes one on top of the other.

The Toasts Of Georgian Supra (Feast) & The Tamada ...

Supra is generally an hours-long feast with an endless conveyor belt of dishes served. Food is replenished so there is a constant supply to graze over. Georgian hospitality is famous, and supra is the embodiment of this. A family is sharing not only their home, but their food, their wine, their time, and their conversation.
